

At the Intersection of Aging and Transportation

Creating Healthy Communities Conference

Imagine going wherever you want to go, leaving when you want to, and connecting to the people and places that matter most to you. Now imagine losing that freedom. The distance to medical care, friends and family seems longer than ever before. Your health suffers. Without regular interaction, people fade away.

Every day, older adults in our communities face the impact of losing access to transportation, losing access to what they want in life. An exciting new FREE conference, At the Intersection of Aging and Transportation, is designed to bridge that gap. This event will feature compelling solutions that connect aging, health, and transportation through innovative programs. It will offer important insights about what is working and what can be done better. All we need is you!

You can make a difference in the lives of older adults. We need your insights and expertise in aging, health, and transportation. The Federal Highway Administration will share the recommendations and material developed at the conference into a curriculum for training transportation professionals nationwide.

This one-day event will bring together a wide variety of national experts to share data on the impact of aging on transportation services, focusing on the well-being of older adults. Topics in general sessions and breakout workshops include:

- The role of transportation in keeping older adults and communities healthy.
- Options for meeting the transportation needs of older adults.
- How technology shapes aging and access to transportation.
- Strategies for improving access to transportation in underserved communities.
- What can be done at a local, state and national scale to better meet the transportation needs of older adults now and in the future.

This event is made possible through the partnership of AARP AZ, Age Friendly Arizona, and the Vitalyst Health Foundation, with support from the Federal Highway Administration.
